

United States Patent [19]
Stigvils

[11] 3,735,245
[45] May 22, 1973

[54] PHASE SHIFTER CIRCUIT

[75] Inventor: Albert Charles Stigvils, Glendale Heights, Ill.
[73] Assignee: GTE Automatic Electric Laboratories Incorporated, Northlake, Ill.
[22] Filed: Dec. 20, 1971
[21] Appl. No.: 209,516

[52] U.S. Cl.....323/109, 323/122
[51] Int. Cl.....H03b 3/04
[58] Field of Search.....323/109, 110, 121,
323/122, 123, 124, 125; 328/155

[56] References Cited

UNITED STATES PATENTS

3,213,291 10/1965 Reid323/123 X
2,125,127 7/1938 Roberts323/125 X

2,410,721 11/1946 Dome323/125 X

FOREIGN PATENTS OR APPLICATIONS

961,003 4/1950 France323/109

Primary Examiner—A. D. Pellinen
Attorney—K. Mullerheim, B. C. Franz and T. C. Jay Jr.

[57] ABSTRACT

A phase shift circuit capable of shifting the phase of an input signal over a 360° range. It consists of a center tapped feed transformer with its outer terminals connected across the outer terminals of a potentiometer. The movable arm of the potentiometer is connected through a capacitor to one or the other of the outer terminals of the transformer, with the phase shifted output taken from the potentiometer arm and a center tap of the transformer.

1 Claim, 6 Drawing Figures

